University of hong kong business school ranking

Unlike a business trip to China, where travelers need the right type of visa before entering the country, business travelers to nearby Hong Kong have it easier. Travelers to Hong Kong usually do not require a visa for regular or short trips, but business travelers could. In particular, U.S. citizens do not need a visa to visit Hong Kong for 90 days or less. However, if you want to work, study or start a business, you will need a visa. So if your stop in Hong Kong is just a holiday, a stopover or a short, non-business visit, you don't need a visa. However, if you intend to work or start up with companies or meet with them, you will need a visa. Hong Kong is one of two Special Administrative Regions (SARs) of the People's Republic of China, so Chinese embassies and consulates are where business travelers apply for a Hong Kong visa. The other special administrative region is Macao. However, if you are considering going to both Hong Kong and China, you will need a visa for the China part of your trip. For an overview of the procedure for applying for a Chinese visa, see the detailed information. Business travelers to Hong Kong must apply for a visa at an embassy or consulate in the areas where they live or work. You can also have an authorized agent request for you if you are unable to travel. No appointment is required. Sent applications are not allowed. Processing times for visa applications in Hong Kong may vary, so make sure you allow plenty of time before your trip. In general, a good starting point is to make sure you have a valid U.S. passport with at least six months remaining. If you apply for a visa for Hong Kong, you should visit the website of the Ministry of Immigration. From there, you can download and fill out visa forms. Like other visa applications, you will need a standard Passport photo and potentially supporting business materials. The visa fee is 30 USD, the connection fee 20 USD. Fees can be changed without warning, so check the official website for the latest fee plan. Fees can be paid by credit card, payment order, cash cheque or company cheque. Cash and personal cheques are not accepted. Payments should be made to the Chinese embassy. Visa applications must be submitted in person. Sent applications are not accepted. If you have all the materials, you must deliver them to the nearest Chinese consulate for processing. If you do not make it to a Chinese consulate in person, you can hire an authorized agent to do so for you. You can also travel agency ask for help. Thank you for letting us know! HONG KONG -- Markets in Hong Kong and Japan fell Monday on heightened recession fears in the U.S., but China and India, the less mature emerging market giants, continued to reverse the bearish trend, modest gains. The Hang Seng recovered half of its morning losses by the close of trading, but fell 340 points, or 1.2%, to 27,179, while China's Shanghai Composite Index rose 31 points, or 0.6%, to 5,393. The Shanghai Composite Index was 161.4 billion yuan, or 22.2 billion U.S. dollars, about 2.5% shy of October 2006 levels, when the market hit a record high, while the Bombay Sensitive Index gained 108 points, or 0.5%, to an all-time high of 20,795. Indian shares were up for grabs by ICICI Bank (BN) - Get Report, which jumped 4.7% to 1,285 rupees after investors searched for bargains in the early day low. In Taiwan, Taiex fell 338 points, or 4%, to 7883 as traders said they would unload heavy positions in electronics stocks such as Hon Hai Precision (HNHPF) and Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing (TSM) - Get Report, in anticipation of weaker orders, Hon Hai Precision fell 6.3% to 171.50 T171.50, while Taiwan Semiconductor Semiconductor Manufacturing (TSM) fell 7% to 55.80 T00. South Korea's Kospi fell 1.8% to 1831. Hong Kong is more likely to benefit from China and is now more likely to be hurt by the US, said Richard Lee, an analyst at Core Pacific Yamaichi in Hong Kong. In China, you are dealing with another group of investors who care more about China itself and believe that the economy can benefit from the Olympic Games. The biggest losers in Hong Kong were commodity stocks, as the price of gold fell to US$62.10 an ounce on Friday, and crude oil, which lost 0.6% to US$97.33. PetroChina (PTR) - Get Report fell 2.3% to HK13.86, while Shares of Sinopec Shanghai Petrochemical (SHL) fell 3.4% to HK 11.26 after posting big gains last week. Gold mines Zijin Mining (ZIJMF) and Sino Gold (SIOGF) fell 3% to HK 13.04 and 3.6% to HK 50.95 respectively. Financial stocks have also fallen badly because of the global impact of Friday's U.S. labor market data. Hang Seng Bank (HSNGY) fell 1.9% to HK 155.70, while parent hsbc Holdings (HBC) slipped 1.8% to a two-year low of HK127.80 and China Life Insurance (LFC) - Get Report slipped 2.7% to HK38.60. Real estate stocks rebounded in the afternoon session amid rumors that the Federal Reserve could cut interest rates by as many as 50 basis points by the end of January. Conglomerate Swire Pacific (SWRAY) jumped 3.6% to HK 111.8, while Cheung Kong (CHEUY) rose 1.9% to HK 147 and Hang Lung Properties (HLPPY) pulled back from losses and was 1% lower at HK34.15. China's shares were also isolated from the day's sell-off. Rail operator MTR Corp (MTRJY) jumped 9.1% to HK34.90 as Chinese railway companies were boosted by china railway 11.60 HK and the most active traded stock of the day was pushed up. China Railway rose on reports that the company won 22 billion yuan, or 3 billion dollars, in undisclosed contracts on the mainland. Domestic capital sits on the margins, fringe. Capital still waiting for U.S. subprime stabilization to stabilize, says Jackson Wong, investment manager at Tannich Securities in Hong Kong. Chinese consumer stocks and Hong Kong real estate stocks will perform better than the Hang Seng as a whole until volumes pick up. Volumes on the Hang Seng on Friday were HK 113.5 billion, or USD 14.6 billion, compared with HK 99.8 billion, or USD 12.8 billion. Still, Wong says the volume needs to reach HK 150 billion (19.2 billion U.S. dollars) per day before they can be considered aggressive and significant purchases come onto the market. Core Pacific Yamaichi's Lee says the Hang Seng will continue to trade between a range of 25,000 points and 28,000 points for the time being. In China, shares, excluding bank stocks that fell on profit takings, and Air China (AIRYY) and China Eastern Airlines (CEA) - Get Report, were up 1% at 28.89 yuan and flat at 20.63 yuan after reports that shareholders in China Eastern will reject a 920 million dollar share sale to Singapore Airlines (SINGF) and Temasek on Tuesday. If the deal is rejected, Air China will make a counter-offer, the company announced yesterday. In Japan, the Nikkei hit a new 17-month low for the second straight session, ending 190 points, or 1.3%, lower at 14,500 points. Stock prices were most shaken by the major indexes in Asia by Friday's sell-off on Wall Street and a strong yen. The yen gained 0.5% against the dollar to 109.44 points in Asian trade, but remained weaker than the 110 benchmark. Nintendo (NTDOY) led the sale with sales of 5.7 percent to 59,900 yen, although Japanese gaming magazine Enterbrain reported that the Wii surpassed Sony's Playstation 3 in Japan by more than 3 to 1 during the holiday season. The magazine said the Wii sold 774,123 units compared to 232,421 units for the Playstation. Shares of Sony (SNE) - Get Report rose 0.7% to 5,830 on a bargain hunt. Among other exporters, Kobe Steel (KBSTY) lost 0.3% to 346 yen, while Honda (HMC) - Get Report - slipped 0.8% to 3570 yen, but Canon (CAJ) - Get Report followed Sony's lead, rising 0.2% to 4950 yen. The Nikkei Weekly reported over the weekend that Japan's share of GDP has fallen 4% to 4.4 trillion dollars, and that the country's share of global economic growth is now at a 24-year low. Unlike the rest of the world, she also predicted fears of deflation in 2008. Daniel M. Harrison is a business journalist who specializes in European and emerging markets, especially Asia. Hong Kong attracts with its year-round warm weather. However, rainstorms and high prices can deter some tourists. The most popular time to go is during the national holidays in January, May and October, when people come from all over to celebrate festivals, resulting in a in visitors and prices. Summers are hot and humid, and while hotel prices are falling, airfares are still quite high. In winter, the weather is cool and dry, and there are discounts on accommodation and airfare.High season: October to November, end of January to February, April to Maylow season: December to mid-January, June to August shoulder season: March, SeptemberWeather informationWith a subtropical climate, Hong Kong experiences wet (spring and summer) and dry (autumn and winter) seasons. Autumn brings pleasant conditions with average highs of 87, while winter sees cooler temperatures and drops to an average high of 76 degrees. Spring temperatures average 85 degrees, while summer peaks at 92 degrees with high humidity. Typhoon season starts in summer and can last until early autumn. Crowd InformationHong Kong is very busy during its two major festivals, the Chinese New Year (late January to mid-February) and the Golden Weeks in May and October. Chinese New Year is a big holiday for the city and many people come to celebrate. The Golden Weeks are mainly attracting local travellers, and hotels are usually about 80 percent full. Closure informationMost hotels, shops and attractions remain open all year round. However, many pubs close for the Chinese New Year and the following two days, as many families take time out to celebrate together. When to saveThe most expensive time to visit is during the Chinese New Year and Golden Weeks. Visitors can save money from the end of November to January, especially during the Hong Kong WinterFest, when many shopping and restaurant promotions are available.Information provided by the Hong Kong Tourism Board
